Grasshopper Regalia

According to the catalogue, these strange accessories were given to the University by a wizard in exchange for access to some restricted tomes. Called the “Grasshopper Regalia” in the book, the set consists of a pair of knee-high boots, a strange rigid mantle, and a coronet with a pair of processes or antennae.

The boots and mantle are of similar leathery material, a bit like dry crumpled parchment, though the boots are thicker, with seven spines on the calves. The coronet feels wooden, and it has a certain spring to it, as do the protruding rods. The purpose of this regalia, seemingly imitating a grasshopper, is yet to be known.
